Jekyll & Hyde

Based on

The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde written by

Liam Dunstan

Draft Date
9/10/2026

ldu55@uclive.ac.nz

© Liam Dunstan 2026

Cut Scenes:

1. INT. HEALTH RESEARCH CENTRE TEST ROOM HALLWAY - DAY

Jekyll walks out of the test room. He is walking with haste down the hallway, disappointed by the test results. Dr. Lanyon is in hot pursuit of him from behind.

DR. LANYON
Jekyll. Where are you going?

Jekyll keeps walking, expecting Dr. Lanyon to either keep up or give up.

JEKYLL
I'm going back to my office.

DR. LANYON
We should be celebrating my boy.

Jekyll stops in his tracks and turns around to confront Dr. Lanyon.

JEKYLL
And what should we be celebrating. There is still a sick man in that chair.

DR. LANYON
Yes. But for a moment he was better. He felt it, and we all saw it! You know it worked, even for just a moment!

JEKYLL
It didn't work enough.

DR. LANYON
You are too hard on yourself.

JEKYLL
I judge myself based on my performance, and in this moment, I am way behind on where I should be for how long I have been working on this cure.

DR. LANYON
I want you to stop stressing.

Dr Lanyon places his hand on Jekyll's shoulder and walks him back down towards the test room.

DR. LANYON (CONT'D)
I know what we should do. I'm hosting with a dinner party next month, with many of my close friends, and I want you to be there. Gives you a chance to mingle with some different people and perhaps for once relax from your work. What do you say?

JEKYLL
I suppose I should be free.

DR. LANYON
Very good my boy. Very good.

2. INT. HEALTH RESEARCH CENTRE TEST ROOM HALLWAY - DAY

Jekyll walks out of the test room. He is walking with haste down the hallway, disappointed by the test results. Dr. Lanyon is in hot pursuit of him from behind.

DR. LANYON
Jekyll. Where are you going?

Jekyll keeps walking, expecting Dr. Lanyon to either keep up or give up.

JEKYLL
I'm going back to my office.

DR. LANYON
We should be celebrating my boy.

Jekyll stops in his tracks and turns around to confront Dr. Lanyon.

JEKYLL
And what should we be celebrating. There is still a sick man in that chair.

DR. LANYON
Yes. But for a moment he was better. He felt it, and we all saw it! You know it worked, even for just a moment!

JEKYLL
It didn't work enough.

DR. LANYON
You are too hard on yourself.

JEKYLL
I judge myself based on my performance, and in this moment, I am way behind on where I should be for how long I have been working on this cure.

DR. LANYON
I want you to stop stressing.

Dr Lanyon places his hand on Jekyll's shoulder and walks him back down towards the test room.

DR. LANYON (CONT'D)
I know what we should do. I'm hosting with a dinner party next month, with many of my close friends, and I want you to be there. Gives you a chance to mingle with some different people and perhaps for once relax from your work. What do you say?

JEKYLL
I suppose I should be free.

DR. LANYON
Very good my boy. Very good.

3. INT. RESTURANT - DAY

A figure approaches Gabriel. The figures shadow blocks the light towards the table, causing Gabriel to look up. It's Danvers Carew (60's) a politician.

DANVERS
Good afternoon sir, how are you today?

Danvers reaches out to shake Gabriel's hand. Gabriel accepts the offer and shakes back.

GABRIEL
I'm very well, thank you.

DANVERS
Good. Good. I have heard that you my friend, are a pretty great Lawyer.

GABRIEL
Oh - Who did you hear that from?

DANVERS
Oh sorry, I'm close friends with the owner, Martin. He mentioned that you were a regular patron and an upstanding citizen. You see, I am in need of a new lawyer myself, and why not someone that Marty speaks so highly of.

GABRIEL
That's a very generous offer sir -

DANVERS
Here's my card, be in contact soon and we can organize a meeting.

GABRIEL
Thank you, I will.

Danvers walks away. Gabriel looks chuffed with himself for getting a client without having to try. However, he feels an element of guilt for his actions.

4. INT. RESTURANT - CONVERSATION ELEMENT

GABRIEL
Why would you have so many children?

MARGARET
Four is not that many.

GABRIEL
It is more than I would of expected you to have.

MARGARET
What do you mean!?

GABRIEL
You never wanted kids when you were studying.

MARGARET
Yes, Well that was because I wanted to become a nurse. And that after that I met Peter, and wanted a family.

Peter turns and joins the conversation with Margaret and Gabriel.

PETER
I heard my name, am I in trouble?

MARGARET
Not at all, I'm just talking about about how I wanted kids after I met you.

PETER
I just have that type of charm I guess.

JEKYLL
It's not going as well as we'd like.

THOMAS
As in? You can't find a cure?

JEKYLL
We'll be able to find a cure. I'm sure of it. It's just not an easy thing to find

THOMAS
It's a funny thing, to say to find a cure.

JEKYLL
In what way?

THOMAS
To say that you'll find it implies that its lost. It's not lost though. It just hasn't been found.

JEKYLL
That's a very philosophical way to look at it.

THOMAS
Thank you. I try to look at thing's differently.

Across the table, Elizabeth tries to get Thomas attention.

ELIZABETH
Thomas.

THOMAS
Yes, my dear.

Gabriel laughs.

MARGARET
Gabe, If you were in our position -

PETER
So effortlessly in love.

MARGARET
I think, you would have also been eager to have kids and have a family.

GABRIEL
I was at one point.

MARGARET
Where you?

GABRIEL
Ages go. She passed away about 15 years ago. We were only married for 5 years unfortunately.

MARGARET
I had no idea -

GABRIEL
It's fine, It was a long time ago.

5. INT. JEKYLL'S LIVING ROOM - NIGHT

Dr. Jekyll sits comfortably in his large arm chair in the corner of the room. He is writing in his notebook as he always does. His hand trembling with the weight of the pen on his frail hand.

Gabriel walks into the room, he is carrying two cups of tea, as he places one cup down beside Dr. Jekyll, his friend shifts abruptly to hide his book.

GABRIEL
Is that necessary?

Dr. Jekyll in his weakened state looks to his friend.

DR. JEKYLL
Yes.

Gabriel sits down on the couch, placing his teacup on the table beside him.

GABRIEL
Why can't I see what's in the book?

DR. JEKYLL
It is my work. I have been writing my notes for years.

GABRIEL
I know how long you have been writing the notes. I don't understand why I can't read them?

DR. JEKYLL
Does there truly need to be a reason?

GABRIEL
Yes, otherwise what you are doing is beyond immature.

DR. JEKYLL
Well maybe I'm trying to be less mature.

Dr. Jekyll is in immense pain, and very sick. Yet he is trying to maintain the same jovial nature he has always interacted with Gabriel.

GABRIEL
Clearly you already have been.

DR. JEKYLL
In what way?

GABRIEL
I am not naive Henry -

DR. JEKYLL
I never said you where -

GABRIEL
I know what those marks on your skin are, Ok?

DR. JEKYLL
I -

In his loss for words, Gabriel begins to leave the room.

DR. JEKYLL (CONT'D)
I don't know what you mean.

GABRIEL
Yes, you do.

Dr. Jekyll gets up from his chair he is weak, and struggles to walk towards his friend. Gabriel has walked into the kitchen.

DR. JEKYLL
It is a hereditary condition. I'd know because I'm a doctor.

GABRIEL (O.S.)
We both know it's not a hereditary condition.

DR. JEKYLL
It is.

6. INT. JEKYLL'S KITCHEN - NIGHT

Dr. Jekyll enters into the kitchen. He is gripping the doorway for support.

GABRIEL
It is not. I don't know why your so afraid to admit it to me. I have known you for longer than anyone else.

DR. JEKYLL
I don't have anything to admit, and if I did you would not be the person I would tell.

GABRIEL
Who are you going to tell? God?

DR. JEKYLL
What is so wrong with that? I understand that you don't have religion -

GABRIEL
Why would I want to involve myself with a religion, with a God, who wants to condemn me to hell?

DR. JEKYLL
What!? Why would you ever be condemned to hell?

GABRIEL
You are too smart to be this stupid.

DR. JEKYLL
I -

GABRIEL
We are both going to hell Henry. Maybe you so more than me, because one of us has clearly engaged in -

DR. JEKYLL
I have not.

GABRIEL
Henry! You have AIDs. I can see, Victoria can see it, we know. Just because you don't want to believe it doesn't mean you do not have it!

Dr. Jekyll leans back against the kitchen counter, defeated. His frail frame, being supported by the wooden furnishings.

GABRIEL (CONT'D)
I don't know why your scared to admit it! We have both known for as long as we have known each other.
(MORE)

GABRIEL (CONT'D)
That's why we go out to lunch pretending its a meeting, it's why we never go out walking the two of us, it's why Victoria asks you how I am every time she calls, and why she came to me when you started to look sick. Henry, you and I have been doing this dance for a long time now, I don't know why you are so afraid to tell me, the one person who may actually understand it all.

Dr. Jekyll sits back he knows everything his friend is saying is true.

DR. JEKYLL
Get out.

GABRIEL
Henry.

Gabriel moves forward almost grabbing his friend. Jekyll's body is feeling stronger for a moment as if Hyde's physicality has taken over.

DR. JEKYLL
I said Get out!

Gabriel stops mid movement, and moves towards the door.

GABRIEL Fine.

Gabriel walks out of the kitchen and directly to the front door, opening it and slamming it shut. Dr. Jekyll stays standing, his body feeling strong, his emotions unstable, his mind racing, he starts to cry.

INT. DR. JEKYLL'S HOME - MORNING

The phone is ringing.

Dr. Jekyll is layed face down on his bed, shirt on and pants off, his hair a mess, and his sweaty smell profound. He drearily wakes, and rubs his face in an elongated pull.

He picks up the phone slowly.

DR. JEKYLL
Hel-

VICTORIA
WHERE THE HELL HAVE YOU BEEN!

DR. JEKYLL
Can you not -

VICTORIA
Can I not what? SHOUT!? You didn't call me back, and then you ignore me, and then I find out your ignoring Gabriel of all people. What is going on with you?

DR. JEKYLL
I have a lot on.

In the window, reflection is Hyde, staring back at him, smirking.

VICTORIA
You can't always just have a lot on, that's not how this works. You can't just ignore everyone and expect them to come back to you, when your ready for them. That's not how relationships work.

DR. JEKYLL
I know that.

Jekyll touches his face and watches Hyde do the same.

DR. JEKYLL (CONT'D)
I don't want to ignore everyone, but I'm just taking some time to work on myself.

VICTORIA
Ok then, at the very least is this time helping you.

DR. JEKYLL
I do feel better, It's like I'm figuring out another side of me.

VICTORIA
Well, I'd like to meet him some time, if he ever picks up my phone calls.

DR. JEKYLL
I'll try.

VICTORIA
Please do. Ok, I love you.

DR. JEKYLL
Love you too.

VICTORIA
Bye.

DR. JEKYLL
Bye.

Jekyll hangs up the phone.

7. INT. SOHO APARTMENT BUILDING - DAY

A dingy run-down apartment building, paint peels off the walls, and the doors have a lingering creek when they open.

An old lady walks Dr. Jekyll to the apartment door. He is dressed less formal attire, trying to go incognito with the environment.

OLD LADY
Just this one her love.

The lady stops a door at the end of the hallway, marked apartment 13.

She searches around in her pocket for a key, pulling out an old looking thing, that appears to have rusted. She opens it up, giving the door, a bit of a shove to properly push open.

OLD LADY (CONT'D)
Sometimes its just a bit tough.

8. INT. HYDE'S APARTMENT - NIGHT

The lady walks through into the apartment, Dr. Jekyll follows her. It is a small room, it has a quaint kitchen in the corner of the room, and a bathroom through a door across from the bed.

OLD LADY
What do you think?

DR. JEKYLL
Um - It's quite cozy.

OLD LADY
Is it just for you dear, any wife, a family,

DR. JEKYLL
It'll be for a friend. He moves around a lot, and needs somewhere affordable to stay.

OLD LADY
Well it's his if he wants it.

DR. JEKYLL
He'll take it.

Dr. Jekyll looks around the apartment pleased with himself.

9. INT. PHIL'S APARTMENT - NIGHT (LATER)

Dr. Jekyll walks out of the bathroom, his hair wet from the shower. The purple bruises paint his pale skin.

Phil, looking thinner and paler, leans patiently against the kitchen cabinets.

PHIL
Shit. What happened to you?

DR. JEKYLL
You should see the other guy.

PHIL
Is your bag here? Do you have bandages or something?

DR. JEKYLL
I'm a doctor, not a paramedic.
(points to bag in corner)
There might be some gauze.

Dr. Jekyll sits down at a chair. Phil grabs the bag and moves closer.

PHIL
You know, you sound like Hyde too much now.

DR. JEKYLL
I'll take it as a compliment.

Phil starts to wrap Gauze around his arm, where the wound is weeping.

PHIL
What even happened.

DR. JEKYLL
Some guys attacked Judy.

PHIL
Shit? Did anyone get hurt?

Dr. Jekyll looks at him with a "well obviously me"

PHIL (CONT'D)
Apart from you obviously.

DR. JEKYLL
Maybe some of the attackers.

Beat.

DR. JEKYLL (CONT'D)
Gabriel was there.

PHIL
The Gabriel? Well that confirms that then...

DR. JEKYLL
Confirms what?

PHIL
Doc. You have told me so much about that man, it's obvious you love him.

DR. JEKYLL
I don't -

PHIL
At least you can be together then.

DR. JEKYLL
I can't.

PHIL
(throws hands up)
Why not?

DR. JEKYLL
Why not!? Because I can't want that.

PHIL
Oh for fucks sake Doc! Nobody on this planet hates you more than you do. You made a whole other person just to escape yourself.

DR. JEKYLL
So what? So what if I did? What's it to you?

PHIL
You are in my apartment, confiding in me! It's my business.

DR. JEKYLL
Well It doesn't need to be.

PHIL
Well you can have your wish. I'll be dead in a few months anyway.

DR. JEKYLL
What?

PHIL
I'm sick. Not just of you.

DR. JEKYLL
No, you're fine.

PHIL
Doc. Do I look fine?

DR. JEKYLL
I -
(Beat)
Is it?

Phil nods.

Dr. Jekyll slams his hand down against the kitchen bench.

PHIL
Can you not do -

DR. JEKYLL
How long?

PHIL
How long? I don't know?

DR. JEKYLL
When did you start feeling sick?

PHIL
Your the doctor. You told me it was a common cold.

DR. JEKYLL
I didn't think!

PHIL
You didn't want it to be! Neither did I though. You're acting like it only affects you!

DR. JEKYLL
So what now then!?

PHIL
You should get your blood tested or something? I don't know.

DR. JEKYLL
How long have you actually been sick for?

PHIL
I haven't been feeling great for the past 2 months or so. It hasn't stopped, so I asked another friend, and it's similar to - to what's happening to me.

DR. JEKYLL
It could be something else?

PHIL
Doc. We both know it's not.

Phil begins to cry, and Dr. Jekyll gives him a hug to comfort him.

10. INT. Upper-class Restaurant - Night

An upper-class restaurant, filled with well-dressed patrons. Dr. Lanyon sits at a table centered in the room, alongside his wife, Mary, as well as another older couple, Mr. & Mrs. Abney, and Rebecca Enfield, mid-40s, dressed in a modest dress, Dr. Jekyll's date for the evening.

Dr. Jekyll arrives fashionably late, and walks over to the table steadily.

Upon seeing Dr. Jekyll, Dr. Lanyon stands to beckon him over to the table.

DR. JEKYLL
Good Evening everyone, I apologize for my tardiness.

DR. LANYON
No need, son.

Dr. Jekyll stands over the empty seat. Rebecca sits silently waits for the introduction.

DR. LANYON (CONT'D)
This here is Rebecca.

Dr. Jekyll turns to her and greets her as if he hadn't seen her upon approaching. He extends his hand to her to shake.

DR. JEKYLL
Doctor Henry Jekyll. Nice to meet you.

Rebecca accepts the handshake.

REBECCA
Rebecca Enfield. It's a pleasure.

Dr. Jekyll sits down beside her.

CUT TO:

INT. RESTURANT - NIGHT (LATER)

Everyone has meals in front of them, a few of them are already half eaten, some barely touched. Jekyll's falls in the later category. Empty wine glasses sit in front of everyone.

DR. JEKYLL
I don't know. Truly.

DR. LANYON
It must be almost 13 years Jekyll.

REBECCA
13 years is such a long time to spend at a job. I don't think I've been anywhere longer than 5 years.

MARY LANYON
It might even be longer than that, if I remember correctly, since Richard came home raving about the brilliant Henry Jekyll and how he was such a great doctor.

DR. JEKYLL
That's very kind of you sir.

DR. LANYON
I stand by my word.

MR. ABNEY
Dr. Jekyll?

DR. JEKYLL
Yes.

MR. ABNEY
Richard and I were talking about this earlier, but what are your thoughts on this whole gay virus, as a doctor that is.

DR. JEKYLL
Oh - um, It's bad? I suppose we don't have to worry about it much.

Rebecca looks down at her plate.

MARY LANYON
Perhaps let's not talk about work.

DR. LANYON
Abney here is a phycologist, loves to know how and why people think. You get used to the spontaneous questions.

MR. ABNEY
I get many patients coming in with all types of things wrong with them, but this whole gay virus - oof. Seems like a sham to me.

REBECCA
I don't think it's a sham.

DR. JEKYLL
I'd have to agree with Miss Williams here. It isn't a sham, it's just not something we can easily diagnose or treat.

MR. ABNEY
Yes, but it's all just attention seeking, all these clients come in, and they act like a common cold may be the death of them.

DR. LANYON
Now, Abney, I think your the only one that believes it's fake.

Mrs. Abney shakes her head. Dr. Jekyll watches everything unfold like a bad car crash.

MARY LANYON
Barb, surely you don't.

MRS. ABNEY
I do Mary. I think that this is punishment for there choices.

REBECCA
It's not a choice though.

MR. ABNEY
Of course its a choice girl. People aren't born that way, they choose to be them. And then their actions have consequences simple as that.

DR. JEKYLL
I disagree, why would someone choose to be something that people despise. That doesn't make sense.

DR. LANYON
I think that this is getting out of hand. Let's talk about something else. Rebecca what school do you -

MR. ABNEY
Richard, I did ask him a question and I would appreciate his answer.

Dr. Jekyll is lightly sweating.

DR. JEKYLL
I'm afraid I don't have much else to add.

MR. ABNEY
Really? The suspiciously unmarried 50-year-old doesn't have an opinion on faggots?

Dr. Jekyll can feel something inside him changing, he is sweating stronger. Fighting Hyde, by looking at Rebecca.

DR. LANYON
Abney, he is here on a date with Rebecca. Please don't insinuate such claims towards my friend.

Mr. Abney shoots Dr. Jekyll a knowing look.

MR. ABNEY
(lightly sarcastic)
I apologize Doctor, for overstepping.

DR. JEKYLL
It's fine.

Mr. Abney turns to his wife and the two whisper secretly.

MARY LANYON
Now that that's all over, I'd love some more wine.

Mary Lanyon raises her hand slightly to get the waiters attention.

A waiter comes over with a new bottle of wine.

Rebecca grabs Dr. Jekyll's wrist lightly.

REBECCA
(mouthing)
Are you ok?

DR. JEKYLL
Mhh, fine. It's not the first time.

Rebecca looks at him with a sweet kindness, that Dr. Jekyll doesn't always get.

The waiter reaches past Dr. Jekyll to fill his wine. Dr. Jekyll looks up towards him.

DR. JEKYLL (CONT'D)
Thank -

It's Phil. Jekyll shrinks, knowing he has been seen by him.

Dr. Jekyll abruptly jumps from his seat.

DR. JEKYLL (CONT'D)
I need to go to the bathroom.

Everyone at the table and Phil look concerned by the announcement.

DR. LANYON
That's fine Jekyll, we won't stop you.

Mary chuckles at her husbands joke. Jekyll runs off to the bathroom.

INT. RESTURANT BATHROOM - NIGHT

Like the rest of the restraunt the bathroom is nicely presented and well-kept.

Dr. Jekyll throws himself into a stall. His body is shaking, his nerves taking control and with them Hyde. He breaths deeply and withholds him briefly.

Dr. Jekyll walks out to the bathroom sink, he turns the tap on and starts to wash his hands. As he looks into the mirror he sees the reflection of Hyde staring back at him menacingly.

DR. JEKYLL
Will you just leave me alone?

HYDE
I can't do that.

DR. JEKYLL
Why?

HYDE
Because I am you. I am that fear in you.

DR. JEKYLL
I - I can't be you.

HYDE
You already are.

Dr. Lanyon opens the door, and his eyes are drawn to the sink, where warm steam is shooting from the basin.

DR. LANYON
JEKYLL!

Dr. Jekyll snaps out of his trance, abruptly pulling his bright red hands from the water

DR. LANYON (CONT'D)
Are your hands ok?

DR. JEKYLL
They- they're fine.

DR. LANYON
Are you sure?

DR. JEKYLL
Hmmm.

DR. LANYON
Is this about what Abney said? Don't listen to him, he's had this complex for years, his son's gay, you see. They resent him for it, he resents them too.

DR. JEKYLL
I - I wouldn't of thought.

DR. LANYON
It's like a well kept secret to everyone that didn't already know the boy. They'll act like they never had a son, think that having a gay son makes them failures.

DR. JEKYLL
It wasn't because of what he said.

DR. LANYON
Ok good. Let's get back to the food, I can't imagine anyone will stay much longer.

Dr. Jekyll follows Dr. Lanyon out of the bathroom and back into the restaurant.

EXT. RESTURANT - NIGHT

Dr. Jekyll walks Rebecca to her car on the empty street, the crisp night air, tensing their skin.

REBECCA
Are you sure you're feeling ok?

DR. JEKYLL
I'm sure. I want to make it clear, that I am unmarried because I've been married to my work, not because -

REBECCA
Same. I love my job too much to ever put it on hold for someone else.

The two walk up to a small blue car.

REBECCA (CONT'D)
This is my car right here.

DR. JEKYLL
It was nice getting to meet you tonight.

REBECCA
I liked meeting you too.

Dr. Jekyll extends his hand, and Rebecca returns it instead with a lingering hug, that feels like it goes on for forever. Jekyll pulls away first, and locks eyes with Rebecca, the two kiss.

Almost incautiously Dr. Jekyll begins to transform into Hyde. Dr. Jekyll pulls away from the kiss, and turns to quickly runaway as the transformation takes place.

DR. JEKYLL
Bye.

Rebecca is bemused.

REBECCA
Bye!

EXT. RESTURANT ALLEYWAY - NIGHT

Hyde recovers in the alleyway. Hyde stares into a puddle of water on the ground. In the reflection is Dr. Jekyll.

DR. JEKYLL
What was that? Why - Why would you run?

HYDE
Because we need to be this.

DR. JEKYLL
NO! your me. We're not like this, we need to be me, that's what keeps - that's what keeps me safe.

HYDE
WE are the same person. We both share the same urges, and desires, and wants, without me you don't exist.

DR. JEKYLL
Without you I was happy.

HYDE
(scoffs)
Without me?

Hyde stamps the puddle and the reflection of Dr. Jekyll disappears.